Emory University’s

Program in Ancient Mediterranean Studies

announces the Fall 2014

Ancient Mediterranean Studies Colloquium Series

4:30 – 6:00 PM on Thursday afternoons (usually)

Michael C. Carlos Museum, Tate Room

September 11 – Claas Lattman (Emory University)

“One, Two, Three: Plato’s Theory and Practice of Mathematical Modeling”

*October 6 [Monday] – Walter Scheidel (Stanford University) – CALLAWAY S104

“Slavery and Forced Labor in Early China and the Ancient Mediterranean”

October 16 – Robin Osborne (Cambridge University)

“Visual Evidence for Slavery in Greece and Rome”

November 6 – Nancy Felson (University of Georgia)

“Pindar of Thebes and the Savvy Interpreter”

TBD -- Louis Ruprecht (Georgia State University)

Refreshments (as usual) will be served!

For further information or questions, contact
Richard Patterson, Professor of Philosophy & Ancient Mediterranean Studies, rpatt01@emory.edu